

Army Pigeons

Washington, July 26.—When the stories of valor and dash, of hair-breath escapes through seas of exploding shells, of torments and hardships, of a desperate struggle for the blood of future generations of men and women, the human race will not have a monopoly of the glory. In the animal corps there is a bird brigade, an organization of carrier pigeons, half a hundred members of which have received citations of honor, decorations and other military medals.

When the record is made up due recognition is to be given these soldiers of the wing for the part they played in the lives they have saved, for the information of military value, beyond transmission but for them, which they have carried. Special photographic records are to be made of these bird heroes. Those that still live are to be given comfortable homes in the big zoos of the nation where their admirers may visit them. They will be furnished with plumage and tables which recite the stirring deeds in which they have participated.

Chere Ami, the greatest of these birds, died in Washington the day after a long and brave attempt to recover from her wounds. The body is to be mounted and find a place in that scientific hall of fame, the Smithsonian Institution. For Chere Ami, it may be remembered, brought out information vital to the progress of that bloodiest of American drives, that of Argonne forest. She was carrying a message from the front, when the leg to which the message holder was attached was shattered by a bullet. The injured limb was left dangling by the ligaments, and the message, that had been passed through the breast bone, biting deeply. In spite of these injuries and great loss of blood this pigeon flew 25 miles and delivered the message. The injured leg was amputated, and it was thought that Chere Ami would recover. She was brought to this country with the other birds which were taken in battle and was operated upon, but human skill could not save her life, and she died from wounds received in battle.

There is a Sergeant York among the pigeon heroes. His name is Spike. This bird has a record of having delivered 52 messages. No pigeon can boast of a prouder record. Spike is now stationed at one of the numerous lofts in Potomac park, Washington, where he is "sitting on the world" with all the bird seed he can eat and a goodly amount of human attention. He is the mascot of the new Lincoln memorial, down the Mall to the Capitol a mile away.

Has Two Service Stripes
Spike is a carrier pigeon like the 30,000 others which are a part of the American army. He has two service stripes on his left wing and a wound stripe on his right, having been gassed near Sedan while he was in the second division on the day before the second division was signed. After he was gassed Spike had his tail feathers pulled out, this being the army treatment for gas cases in the carrier pigeon service.

Once with many narrow escapes, Spike had three other birds he was abandoned in a cage near the German lines and was taken to the German camp. But even under these circumstances he found opportunity for heroic usefulness. A machine gun section that had been cut off from its base found the carrier pigeon and sent a message on a cigarette paper in the capsule tied to Spike's leg. The pigeon found its way back to the loft and the section was located in less than four hours. Birds were rushed up to the new sections and with less than half an hour's service they were ready to serve. The German birds were equally quick at that time, but the messages carried back to headquarters were not so quick as the carrier pigeon's.

During the advance of the Yanks at Saint Mihiel, they came upon a hurriedly abandoned German loft. High in the air above it, circled the former occupants, alarmed and bewildered at the catastrophe that had so suddenly come upon them. American pigeons hurriedly took to the air and the German birds accepted it, though most reluctantly, as a substitute for their own. Messages of vital importance were found to be in the lofts at Potomac park.

Mates Up With "Ace"
One of the German birds, a graduate mated up with a Yank, formerly attached to a field signal battalion, and one of the American "aces." As the army order forbidding Americans to wed Germans does not apply to carrier pigeons, they are happily mated in their loft where they have a family nest and two hyphenated eggs.

The pigeon was not always fortunate in passing through the battle area unscathed. Shells exploded with such frequency and in such manner that the pigeon was often caught in the rain of exploding shells. Both of its legs were broken, and the aluminum message holder was imbedded in the flesh by the force of the bullet. But its spirit never faltered at the feet of on and on, falling dead at the feet of an attendant. The message proved to be a pressing one, and the soldiers were heartily in favor of awarding the D. C. to this bird for its gallant display of courage.

Wounded But Flies On
Another bird was released from a machine which had fallen and was being shelled by a German destroyer. The bird rose quickly and circled about to get its bearings. Shots rebounded from the deck of the destroyer, and a stream of falling feathers told that it had been hit. After a short fall the bird recovered and flew homeward under great difficulty. Within half an hour three British war vessels had arrived on the scene. The Germans fled and the aviators were rescued. With body and wings lacerated, this heroic bird had flown 13 miles to a naval air station, and given the alarm.

While some of these tales read like fanciful visions of a vivid imagination, all are vouched for by official action.

CANAL TEST BY FLEET IS SUCCESS

DREADNOUGHTS ARE LIFTED THROUGH GATUN LOCKS TODAY.

BATTLESHIPS PASS ON TO PACIFIC

Commanding Admiral Pleased With Facilities of Water Gateways.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Aboard the U. S. S. New Mexico, Friday, July 25.—Four dreadnaughts of the Pacific fleet, the New Mexico, Arkansas, Texas, and New York, were tested successfully through the Gatun locks today. This was the first attempt to negotiate the waterway with dreadnaughts, and tonight the warships in anchored in the fresh water of Gatun lake, 36 feet above sea level. The dreadnaughts will resume their trip toward the Pacific ocean Saturday, at which time the Mississippi and Wyoming, now coaling and oiling at Colon, will commence the passage of the canal.

Admiral Hugh Rodman, in command of the fleet, was pleased with the success of the first stage of the canal trip.

He said: "The flagships were lifted out of the three locks of Gatun dam in one hour and 17 minutes. Now let us go through the locks through the canal is too easy."

The old battleships Georgia and Vermont joined the fleet at Colon today. After the New Mexico had sailed at Colon the ship swung lazily into Limon bay, whence she took the two ships part of the way to the dam, creeping slowly through the first cuttings of the waterway amid dense jungle growth like some weird amphibian in a prehistoric swamp.

Reaching the locks the crew flung landing lines outward which quickly drew in board steel cables that led to the electric "mules" running on tracks on each side of the locks. The whole operation seemed to function automatically, for not an order was heard as the dreadnaughts slid into the lower locks as easily as a shuttle into a sewing machine.

Lifted Easily.
The steel gates astern the flagships then closed like great jaws and churning water rose up from sluiceways in the bottom of the lock while the New Mexico was lifted as easily and rapidly as a rowboat. The flagships were then lifted out of the next two locks in the same fashion while the whole operation seemed to function automatically, for not an order was heard as the dreadnaughts slid into the lower locks as easily as a shuttle into a sewing machine.

Twenty destroyers went through the canal, Thursday, passing through the locks in groups of 10. Captain Edwin A. Sweeney, chief of staff, said that the canal had proved its naval value beyond a doubt as dreadnaughts may be easily moved from the Atlantic to the Pacific with safety and without trouble as shown by today's operation. The Pacific fleet will leave Panama for San Diego, California, Sunday night.

HOUSE TO PROPOSE FIVE WEEKS RECESS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Washington, July 26.—Majority leaders of the house have decided to propose to senate leaders a five week recess of the house, beginning next Monday, and ending on August 6, being devoted to clearing the calendar. The plan contemplates that hearings on the tariff, railroad and marine matters, war department investigations of the war, and other matters will continue during the recess.

There was some indication today that senate leaders might raise objections to the plan, but it is believed that the house or senate to recess for more than periods of three days at a time.

SURPLUS FOOD INQUIRY REPORT IS PREPARED

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Washington, July 26.—With their request for a hearing blocked by the republicans, democratic members of the war investigating committee today were preparing a minority report on the recent inquiry into the delay in the war department in disposing of its large surplus of army foodstuffs. Democrats stated they expected to disprove statements contained in the report accepted by the republicans Thursday in which the war department was censured for its failure to sooner announce the food surplus, and to arrange for its disposal.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Paris, July 26.—The size of the force required for the occupation of the Rhineland under the terms of the German peace treaty was a question under consideration by the supreme council at today's session. For the present, it is said, a force of 150,000 men is likely to be considered necessary for the occupation of the Rhine. The organization of the military expedition for the occupation of the Rhine was also discussed. It was decided that the expedition should be represented by the proportion of Americans in the expedition will be comparatively small.

TAFT RESENTS LETTER BEING PUBLISHED

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
New York, July 26.—The Associated Press has received the following message from Senator Taft: "The publication of the letter written by me to Mr. Wilson July 20, last, these letters were personal and confidential and were so plainly marked and were published without the knowledge or consent of Mr. Wilson or myself. I ask in fairness to Mr. Wilson and me at once to give this the same publicity you gave the letters."

"PICTURE" BRIDES BROUGHT FROM JAPAN

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Washington, July 26.—Senator Phelan of California today announced he had submitted to the state department information showing that the "Korea Maru," a Japanese liner, had recently brought 150 "picture" brides from Japan to California. Such immigration, he said, was in violation of the gentlemen's agreement.

Professors Get Less Pay Than Street Car Men

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Cambridge, Mass., July 26.—Salaries of many assistant professors at Harvard are lower than wages paid to street car men, according to figures made public today in connection with the announcement of a plan for a $100,000 endowment fund campaign. A salary roll $1,000,000 some instructors received less than $1,000 a year while some assistants receive as low as $500.

Crowder Will Return to U. S. From Cuba, Aug. 7

WILSON SENDS LETTER TO LODGE; IS NOT REFUSAL OF ANYTHING

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Washington, July 26.—President Wilson has written a letter to Senator Lodge, chairman of the foreign relations committee, dealing with a resolution recently adopted by the senate. In making the announcement today White House officials said the letter was "not a refusal of anything." The resolution referred to in the letter was supposed to be that of the committee asking for all documents used by American delegates at the peace conference.

President Wilson's advisors said today that after studying the letters written by former President Taft, Chairman Hays of the republican national committee and several senators regarding reservations to the peace treaty the president had concluded that Mr. Taft did not write for publication. The president believed Mr. Taft was making an honest effort to bring about a settlement of the league controversy.

Some of the president's advisors let it be known today that they deprecated the action of some senators who have visited the White House, in placing their own interpretations in statements for publication upon what the president had said to them on the peace treaty and the league covenant.

With a view to discussing the general treaty solution the president planned to go to the capitol today to confer with Senator Hitchcock, ranking democrat on the foreign relations committee and other democratic senators.

It was indicated today that the president was considering the advisability of making some sort of a statement regarding his views on proposed reservations to the treaty.

The president's departure from Washington as it was said at the White House today that he would deliver numerous speeches before he reached San Francisco for a settlement of the strike there. It was expected that his first speech would be delivered in some city in the middle west.

EXPORT OF ARMS TO MEXICO UNDER U. S. SUPERVISION

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Washington, July 25.—Control over the exportation of arms and ammunition to Mexico, vested during the war in the war trade board, was again delegated to the state department in a proclamation signed by President Wilson July 12, and published today.

Exportation of implements of war to Mexico without specific license has been prohibited for several years and the war trade board section of the state department in new regulations made public today, reiterated that no munitions of war or their ingredients or the machinery for their manufacture could be exported to that southern republic without individual licenses for each shipment.

MARRYING YANKS MISUNDERSTOOD RULES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Coblenz, Thursday, July 24.—Reports of marriages between American soldiers and German girls have been received at headquarters from various parts of the occupied area during the past few days, but as yet no charges have been filed against any of the men. It is believed most of the marriages were due to misunderstandings regarding the anti-fraternization regulations.

A week before the treaty was signed, several of the chaplains through the soldiers that marriages were permissible as soon as the Germans accepted the peace terms. Officers say that a number of marriages took place before the treaty was signed. A special investigation from headquarters calling the attention of the officers and men to the fact that until the United States ratified the treaty, Germany and America technically were at war and the regulation prohibiting fraternization was still in force.

At headquarters it is said that even after the United States ratified the treaty, marriages with German girls were prohibited by an army order. In the last four or five months officers who are familiar with details of at least 20 soldiers, married German girls with the consent of the army authorities who desired to mitigate circumstances. In each instance the soldier was willing to marry the girl and after an investigation, the officers advised a civil marriage and recommended that there be no court martial.

PLANNING RESIDENTIAL STREETS.

The development of streets for the average home through the opening up of new territory in suburban or residential areas, requires most careful attention from a city planning board. Careful study must be given to the character of such streets, relation to main streets, and to home conditions. The width of the streets, the height of the buildings, the establishment of building lines, the size and depth of building lots, all have to be accurately studied and wisely determined in advance as far as possible.

Frequently it will be possible to secure correct conditions through the willing cooperation of the owners of property in laying out projected developments where laws have not been passed definitely determining all the elements involved and the advantages to be secured to the community at large.

Here, as elsewhere, co-operation, tact, and reliance upon civic patriotism, together with broad, far-sighted vision, will yield great economic and social advantages.

Avoid Habit of Musing.

Few habits are more injurious than musing, which differs from thinking as being one's chamber does from walking abroad. The mind learns nothing, and is not strengthened but weakened, remaining perpetually on the same barren track. Where the thoughts are sower the soil is doubly great, and not only time and vigor are squandered, but melancholy becomes fixed. It is really a disease, and the question how it should be treated is one of the most important in anthropology.—J. W. Alexander.

City Planning

One of the chief agencies in promoting progress in cities is the planning of the city. The industrial world has been the street railway. It is the facilities for street transportation that have made the modern city possible. The most difficult city planning problem is the development of transportation. The development of transportation in the United States has been due largely to private knowledge and private capital.

Public authorities have seldom aided or encouraged the men who conducted the first experiments in city railways. The same spirit of conservatism, together with the apparent impossibility of establishing continuing policies, has obstructed the vision, limited the energy, and furnished inadequate appreciation for public enterprise of magnitude, outside of the ordinary routine of the city.

Transportation Overlooked. It is not surprising that the seeds of street transportation were not provided for in the early planning of cities. It is surprising, however, now that the transportation needs are clear, that means are not provided for their satisfaction. While every form of transportation is called to the service of the city, those forms which represent the daily flow of traffic through the city, and which are most closely in touch with the masses of the people.

The extent to which they serve and satisfy the needs of the city is taken as one of the indications of the progress and enterprise of the community. But whether the business of the street railway drifts into the city ownership and operation, or whether it continues in private control, thoroughly efficient and satisfactory service can only be given to all parts of a community by a well distributed and well co-ordinated system, which shall provide the most direct and speedy routes.

Adequate Service Provided. This is true not only between existing important business and residential centers, but to and from points and through sections which need the aid and encouragement of good transportation facilities for their growth into important centers. Such a street railway system can be created only where the system of main thoroughfares which forms the backbone of the city is established with a primary view of providing adequate facilities for transportation.

The first discovery in almost every city where systematic studies have been made for the improvement of transportation has been that the street railway system is poorly planned, and will not permit of such a reorganization as is necessary for a thoroughly good service. These conditions are found in their most aggravated forms in the central areas of the city, where the lines are most crowded, and the service is most inadequate.

From the most important thing to keep in mind is that thoroughly economic and satisfactory transportation facilities cannot be provided in any city until the city authorities work in co-operation in providing the necessary extensions and improvements. Street systems have been extended more or less arbitrarily, without proper consideration of their availability for purposes of general transportation.

The failure to do this is often what makes subways necessary. What should have been a co-ordinated system of thoroughfares, they should be planned with a view of providing efficient, economic and abundant street railway service, and as far as possible on the surface of streets.

Tunnels Provide Transit. Rapid transit may be provided by "tube tunnels," subways, "open cut," or elevated railroads. Only cities of great size and population, however, require provisions for rapid transit service. Early development, or, ought to be, influenced largely by the city's topography. Later provision for transit necessarily follows the earlier development.

The growth of a city is usually irregular in plan, and the later provision of rapid transit consequently becomes more difficult to apply. In the growth of a city the business area and district have probably been of narrow extent, with considerable congestion. The provision of rapid transit facilities is liable to increase that congestion rather than relieve it. Therefore rapid transit facilities centering upon a business district would be provided not to a single point, but to a number of points covering a considerable and extended area, so that the lines of travel may tend to increase the dimensions of the area of business congestion.

Business District is Center. Theoretically, the perfect provision for rapid transit in a city would take the form of a central circle and radiate from that district in every direction, lines having large facilities nearer to the central circle, and tapering out to the lesser facilities in the outlying suburban districts, thus effecting what in diagrammatic form would be a star with many points. To obtain this, a general rectangular lay-out for the regular streets with broad diagonal avenues radiating in straight lines from the central districts would appear to yield the best results.

Straight streets for rapid transit facilities are most desirable, although curves having an easy radius are not objectionable in operation, nor do they add materially to the initial cost. In the development of a city plan the entire elimination of any terminals for rapid transit service within the city and suburban districts should be considered essential. Operating lines should extend far from the outer districts, pass through the business district, and extend out again to the exterior sections of the city.

Main Arteries are Best Plan. Adequate facilities for transportation are best obtained by the provision of main straight arteries for rapid transit from a central district to the outlying suburbs, and then from the various stations on these radial lines, provision should be made for local and "suburban" distribution by means of surface transportation. Books and articles of special value in connection with the street railways and the city plan are: the reports of Elton Arnold on Pittsburgh, Chicago, and other cities; the writings of John V. Davies on "Rapid Transit," the proceedings of the National Conference on City Planning, 1913; and the commission on London traffic, 1911.

SCENIC FIREWORKS DISPLAY AT BELOIT

The Athletic association of the Fairbanks-Morse company, Beloit, will present for four nights, commencing Tuesday, the "Theatre-Defield Fireworks display," commencing with the fireworks spectacle, The Battle of Chateau-Thierry.

Chateau-Thierry marks the turning point of the world's war and is the most historical achievement of the conflict. In this great spectacle, in which over 300 living actors take part, will be depicted demonstrations of modern warfare with all its horrors. Bombardment of the ancient city of Chateau-Thierry, destruction of its forts, blowing up of the old stone bridge of the Marne, and the wiping out of the trenches of the enemy.

The scenic setting or picture is over 500 feet in length. It shows a portion of the city proper, with its market places, taverns, government buildings, houses of worship, homes of the villagers, a portion of the river Marne that divides the town, the quay, the historical stone bridge, the towers of the ancient city and crumbling walls of the Medieval Chateau from which the city takes its name, built on the high promontory overlooking the town.

As an interlude a number of high class circus acts will be introduced to break the monotony of the soldiers who are guarding the city, and the entire performance comes to a close with the brilliant display of fireworks.

CARRIER PIGEONS PLAY HEROIC PART IN WINNING WAR

documents in the files of the war department. Here is one most typical: A detachment of French infantry was placed in a certain strategic position and told to hold it at all costs, while their comrades took up positions in the rear. The Germans attacked again and again, and the birds sent up by the advanced detachment bore stories of unequal valor and sacrifice. The final message from the detachment is dramatic in its tragic simplicity. It reads:

"The Boche are on us. We are lost, but have done good work. Have the artillery open on our position."

It was the messages carried to the rear by pigeons that saved the Lost Battalion more than anything else. When the dawn of October 3 showed that he was cut off, Major Whittlesey sent back runners with a report on his position. Each runner gave his life. Pigeons were then sent and it was those couriers of the air that carried the tidings to the other ranks in the forest. The messages brought back by the birds contained exact descriptions of the location and condition of the battalion and expedited measures for its eventual relief.

Domestication of the pigeon service has progressed so rapidly that this branch of the military establishment is already on a peace-time basis. It is one of the new branches that is to be a permanent part of the service. At present there are about 3,500 birds scattered at the various army posts in this country and in our insular possessions.

"FELLOWSHIP"

"If I can have it said of me,
When ended is my time of toil,
That I have fought to help the poor,
And have not labored just for spoil,
I'll greet Death's angel with a smile
And take his hand and journey on,
Believing that I've been worth while
And still shall live although I've gone."

"If friends of mine shall only say
That I was friendly to them all,
That I had time for them each day
And answered every piteous call
For help that fell upon my ears,
And stretched my hand out here and there;
If I can have it said of me
That I have borne my burdens well,
That good in men I've tried to see,
That good of men I've tried to tell;
That I have faced my time of strife
With patience, and have been a friend,
That helpfully I've lived my life,
I shall not fear to face the end."

"If I can strew along the way
The roses of remembrance sweet,
Can leave a few friends here to say
That I have cheered them in defeat;
If I can leave in human hearts
One trace of me when I am gone,
When God the veil of mystery parts,
I need not fear to journey on."

The author of the above poem is unknown to me, but I am quite sure that the great family of Gazette readers will join with me in the thought that if our "old friend" whose body this day has been laid away from the scenes of its labors, could have written us a parting word, he would have expressed himself in thoughts something like the above. His life with us was strong and cheery. In kindness off he served till flesh was weary, and yet ever brave and thoughtful for others. No word of blame or discontent.

During these last few months that have been a trial to the flesh no word of repining has been uttered. Only genial sunshine has illumined his brow; only hopeful cheer based on the good will of a life time of earnest, faithful service of the spirit of love and truth has pervaded the atmosphere of his presence.

We shall miss the light and cheer that has radiated from his ready pen. He wrote in the language of every day conversation of the simple story of every day living, of the problems common to all of us.

Many, many times in social gatherings there have developed reflections from the "Saturday Night Stories" he has given us.

During recent years we have had our afternoons of recreation at "Golf" the old man's game—about as regularly as we have our meals, and these "Saturday Night Stories" have been subjects of conversation.

Not conducive to golf you suggest—no, not always, but golf has only been a means to an end, and social rejuvenation as well as physical recreation has been kept in mind.

A tribute comes from Mr. W. C. Wilmarth of El Paso, Tex. Mr. Wilmarth, it will be remembered, was taken when but a boy into the home life of Mr. and Mrs. Bliss and continued in the sunshine of its love and care until ill health came upon him in mature business years and he was advised to go to a more favorable climate. His word is as follows:

"Better man than he never lived. His memory will be with all of us a constant inspiration for sanity and consideration. His example has carried me through many hard places."

I am reminded by this of the following verse which is expressive of the characteristic home life of Mr. Bliss. It was written by a friend and is as follows:

"But brightest and best of all the years, his loving, thoughtful care
For wife and children in the home, and others sheltered there.

Oh, Yes, dear friend, we're giving thanks on this our parting day
For the years you have blessed our lives by yours throughout life's long pathway."

His was a heart that never aged. He was vigorous in body, mind and spirit. Full of hope and cheer in the midst of the weakness of the trying last day, a loving heart, and a brave spirit was back of the ever warm grasp of the hand and the returning smile of cheer that heartened those at his bedside.

If he could have written his parting thought for us, his companions of his "Saturday Night Stories", they would have been something like the following:

"Into no valley's shadow go the weary feet,
But up the radiant heights, where light serenely sweet
Shines clear and visions fair unfold.
There is the bound of age, the landmark by the way.
There stands the warden, as I cross the line, to say
'Here none is old'."

The Gazette maintains an information bureau at Washington, D. C., under the direction of Frederic J. Haskin. Questions will be answered on any subject. Those desiring information should write a letter to the Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C., and enclose a stamp. The letter will be answered by our bureau.

Q. Will President and Mrs. Wilson be allowed to keep the presents they received while in Europe?
A. All presents given President and Mrs. Wilson as personal gifts they will be allowed to keep. Those given the president by a government intended for the United States government of which the president was only a representative, are to remain in the White House.

Q. How can I clean an old copper kettle?
A. First rub with a lemon dipped in powdered bathbrick. When the stains are removed, wash in warm soapy water and then polish with the powdered bathbrick and a soft cloth.

Q. What are the duties of the secret service of the United States?
A. "Secret Service" in its narrow sense is the name applied to that bureau in the treasury department, the duties of which as defined by law are to detect counterfeiting, to protect the president, and to include all of those agencies which detect violations of federal laws and which keep the government informed.

Q. The department of agriculture has pronounced the house cat an enemy to mankind and has recommended its extermination. It expresses the opinion that the cat destroys more wild birds and young poultry than all their natural enemies combined, that it does not even keep rats away, that it spreads disease, that it does much harm and little good.

THE GENTLE LANES.
Let me tread the gentle lanes
Where the kindly people are,
Where the light from window panes
Gleams and glimmers from afar;
Let me walk with men I know,
Never haughty, seldom great,
And I've strength for every blow
And a friend for every fate.

Let me hear the laughter ring
That proclaims the simple joys,
Let me share the chattering
Of a pack of girls and boys;
Let me live among the men
Who are toiling, day by day,
And I shall be friendless, when
Care and sorrow come my way.

Let me sit awhile and rest
In the fellowship and cheer
Of the men I like the best;
Men of useful service here,
Strong of arm and brown of face,
Honest that shape and build, and
True in their abiding place.
Life is rich with more than gold.

Not in places high or low
Dwells the courage of the race;
Many glorious blossoms grow
In a soul that's commonplace;
And as on the simple lanes
That the men of worth are found
There it is that kindness reigns,
There the joys of life abound.

Sends Her Bomb.
Darlington—Miss Elizabeth Wilson's brother, a Y. M. C. A. worker in France, sent her a package of souvenirs from the battlefields. Among them was a small object, apparently a hand grenade, with a pin protruding. Miss Wilson, without the pin and heard a hissing sound. "Becoming alarmed, she threw the object out on the lawn where it exploded with a terrific report."

THE MING TOMBS
Like the Egyptian pharaohs the emperors of the old Ming dynasty of China made sure that their tombs would be satisfactory by building them in advance of the coming of the reaper. These tombs, now nearly a thousand years old, are one of the great sights of China.
It is quite a journey from Peking to the Ming tombs. First there is a railway trip to Nankow, then a jolting, interminable experience on a donkey through rice fields and villages to the valley of the kings.
The first sign of honor to royalty is a big tumble down stone gateway carved in an assortment of twisted snakes and dragons. Six miles from here are the tombs themselves. But between entrance and graves is a stranger line of sentinels than ever before guarded a collection of the remains of kings.
All down the paved avenue a block apart are pairs of stone animals and people lined up in grave attitudes of attention. Here a pair of twin elephants, one kneeling stiffly on each side of the way, and a little farther on there are two gawky camels, and then horses, and lions. They are very much like the merry-go-round animals on which the children ride at the beach, or an unpainted Noah's Ark collection, rather more grotesque as to expression than the calm little wooden animals of the toy shops.

Here and there you come upon a stone warrior or a mandarin with hands folded in his sleeves standing unafraid between a tiger and a rhinoceros. Some of these stone figures weigh several tons and all were brought from quarries a hundred miles away.
At the end of this solemn congregation are the moss grown, but still impressive, royal tombs, surrounded by many yellow porcelain shrines, and each in a grove of its own. In its own Chinese way the Ming cemetery with its effect of "magnificent distances" and its strange court of honor is as remarkable as the gray old pyramids of Egypt.

ONE BATHTUB FOR 1,700 PERSONS IS PRIDE OF BLOCK

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, July 26.—Thirty-third street made for the state reconstruction commission shows one bath tub in 43 tenement houses in which live 1,700 persons.
The bath tub is the property of a saloonkeeper. It is for use by the owner and his family and comparatively few of the other 43 families on the block have ever seen it. However the fact that the bathtub is in existence is one of the neighborhood prides.

BRODHEAD YOUTH DISAPPEARS WHILE HERE WITH PARENTS

What happened to Harvey Davenport, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Davenport, Brodhead, this morning after Acting Chief of Police Thomas Morris was notified by the missing boy's parents last night that their son disappeared while they were in the city on Friday.

According to the story told the police by Mr. Davenport, the boy disappeared while his parents were at the Mercy hospital with their daughter, who was brought here for treatment. The boy was usually large, for his age, left his parents on their arrival in the city and made arrangements to meet them for the return trip home.

NEW LOCAL FIRM WILL MAKE TRAFFIC DEVICE

Articles of incorporation of a new Janesville concern to be known as the Utilities Manufacturing corporation have been filed with Register of Deeds P. P. Smiley. The corporation is capitalized at $25,000 with three men holding stock—C. A. Enslow, local attorney, George R. Jewkes and William T. Axelson, both of Leoti.

As soon as a plant can be secured, directors plan to begin the manufacture of tobacco splitters and stationary traffic devices, known as "iron policemen." The feature of the traffic regulating device is the fact that it is run down and run over by a car it automatically rights itself, causing no damage to the car or its occupants. It is to be made of heavy cast iron with four arms labeled "Keep to the Right."

BURNING PAPER SETS FIRE TO BUILDING

Quick work on the part of the members of the fire department averted a disastrous fire early this morning. Shortly before 7 o'clock the department was called to fight a fire originating in a shed in the rear of the Troy laundry on Jackson street.

Charles Butler, owner of the laundry, claims that the fire was started by a piece of paper which was blown under the door from an adjoining fire started by a housewife. The building, a small frame structure, was soon in flames and it was necessary to put one lead of hose into play before the blaze could be checked. The fire was filled with equipment for the laundry.

Mr. Butler places his loss at about $100. Patrick Connors, owner of the shed, stated he could not estimate his loss at the present time.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary House.
The funeral of Mrs. Mary House, who died at the Mercy hospital yesterday, will take place from the home of Mrs. Katherine Keating, 541 South Main street, and the St. Patrick's church Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment will be made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Frank C. Metzinger.
Frank C. Metzinger, 308 North Main street, died at 6:30 o'clock at the Mercy hospital after a serious operation. Mr. Metzinger was born at Rochester, N. Y., in 1861, and has lived in Janesville for the past 35 years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Roy Hanson, Emma, Genevieve, John, Albert, and Leo, and two granddaughters and a brother, John.

Notice of the funeral will be given later.

Bacteriologist Talks at Training School

Dr. W. D. Frost, professor of bacteriology at the state university, gave four lectures at the summer session of the Rock County Training school, Thursday and Friday.

He spoke on the laws of bacteriology and the principles of health, accentuating the treatment of children's diseases and the use of vaccine and serum in the treatment of diseases.

This is the tenth summer session of training schools in the state. He has been connected with the state university for 24 years. He gave a course of lectures here four years ago.

Recruits for Army Medical Corps Wanted

Lt. Col. Luke B. Peck, Fort Sheridan, Ill., is at the head of the recruiting party which is here on the second day of its tour of the state to secure enlistments for the medical corps of the army. As helpers, he has with him, Sergeants John Onufer and Leroy Brightman. These enlistees now in this branch will be sent to Fort Sheridan. The army is now conducting on the "University in khaki" plan, which considers the educational as well as military training.

The minimum age limit is 18 and the term is for one or three years. The party will be here for five more days.

Lieut. Slade, Who Gave Flying Stunts Here, Dies

Lieut. William T. (Billy) Slade, the man who gave the Janesville a thrilling exhibition of army flying stunts June 12, is dead.

He died from injuries which he received at Fisher, Ill., Saturday night, when he crashed into a tree at a polo. His flying mate, Michael Tisero, was instantly killed.

The lieutenant's external injury consisted of a gouge in one leg and the fracture of both legs. He was crushed internally, also.

WEST GIVES POINTERS FOR SAVING POTATOES

Allen B. West has issued the following statement from the garden and agricultural department:

"The worst garden pest of the season that the writer finds in his inspection of gardens is the leafhopper, a small insect, which is widespread and threatens thousands of dollars worth of damage to the potato crop of the state. Unless concerted effort is made against it, it will be a serious pest of the future. It is found on tomatoes, beans, and dahlias as well, though its greatest damage is done to the potato crop."

These leafhoppers are small greenish insects which feed on the underside of the leaves, and as the adults both fly and hop one is apt to overlook them unless they appear in large numbers. The eggs of the female are very minute and are well hidden that it is not of much use to look for them; but in about 10 days after they are laid the eggs hatch into nymphs that look much like the adults, but without wings. The nymphs feed upon the leaves until the adult stage is reached. Like plant lice, they get their food by sucking the juices of the leaves, and thus follow the more insects the more damage done by sucking is the fact that the leafhopper usually does not burn, which spreads through the plant rapidly during the hot summer months, causing fields of potatoes to turn brown and die in a few weeks. The adult leafhopper by spraying, for the insects both fly and hop, and are about as hard to get as the traditional flea. The young ones, however, may be kept off by spraying with a very fine mist of sulphate of lead. Forty, using one teaspoonful to a gallon and one-half of water, or better still, putting the nicotine sulphate in a Bordeaux mixture of the same proportion.

"The Bordeaux acts as a repellent to the adults, though it does not kill them. If potato bugs are present, however, which is usually spoken of as a burn, which spreads through the plant rapidly during the hot summer months, causing fields of potatoes to turn brown and die in a few weeks. "For late potatoes it will probably be necessary to make a second or possibly a third application, however, the Bordeaux mixture should be used combined with the Bordeaux and picoline. It is of the utmost importance that the spraying be done in such a way that the underside of the leaves are thoroughly wet. The spray should be made in the evening, so that the leaves will be wet when the sun is down. To do this it is almost necessary to have an assistant to turn up the leaves, or a tool which will do the work while the spray is being applied."

"There are several other matters of importance to come before the meeting Monday. The purchasing committee will report the purchase of the new police patrol and the street program for 1920 may be discussed."

CITY WILL BOND WATER DEPARTMENT
Mayor T. E. Welsh announced before leaving for Chicago today, that bonds to the extent of $50,000 would be issued on the water department in a few days. Arrangements have been made with the local banks to take up the bonds.

Mayor T. E. Welsh, City Attorney Roger Cunningham, and City Engineer C. V. Kerch appeared before the members of the railroad commission at Madison, Thursday, and testified to the necessity of issuing the bonds at this time.

FLEET OF TRUCKS ON TOUR OF SIX STATES TO VISIT JANESVILLE

A fleet of big motor trucks, one mile in length, will visit Janesville 2 and 3, Iowa, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, and Wisconsin. The purpose of the expedition is to demonstrate the motor trucks' practicability for farm use. Numerous demonstration loads will be carried. Trucks will carry loads of hogs, wheat, corn, oats, potatoes, and other crops, while the truck will be equipped with a body designed to carry loose hay.

The tour, which starts from Chicago August 4, will take the trucks over a route of 300 miles, finishing in Milwaukee October 4. All makes will be represented, each factory having one, or more, trucks. All will be pneumatic tires. Moving pictures will be taken en route and will later be exhibited at the fairgrounds to show the value of the truck to the farmer.

There will be a "Jackie" band with the trucks and a recruiting party of sailors will explain the advantages of the new short term enlistments of two and three years. Both the department of agriculture and the navy department are co-operating to make the trip one of interest and success. The truck train will enter Wisconsin at La Crosse, September 28, after finishing its tour of the other western states. It will come as far south as Janesville and then turn westward Milwaukee. The tour will proceed slowly, covering an average of 50 miles per day, numerous stops being made in the smaller towns along the route. The itinerary for Wisconsin follows: La Crosse, Sept. 29; Kendall, Barbours, Sept. 30; Madison, Oct. 1 and 2; Janesville, Oct. 2 and 3; Waukesha, Oct. 3; Milwaukee, Oct. 4.

COUNCIL WILL MEET IN REGULAR SESSION

Janesville's new building code will undoubtedly be adopted by the members of the city council at their meeting Monday night. At the special meeting held last Monday the building code ordinance was presented for the first time and read in full by City Clerk Victor Hemming. A few slight changes were made in the ordinance at the request of several of the aldermen.

There are several other matters of importance to come before the meeting Monday. The purchasing committee will report the purchase of the new police patrol and the street program for 1920 may be discussed.

Belgian Countess Plans to Open Y. W. C. A. Work

Paris: One of the workers on the staff of the American Y. W. C. A. here is a countess. And no representative of the Blue Triangle works any harder. She is Countess Goblet of Alviella of Brussels.

She speaks English as easily as she does French and five or six other languages. At present she is studying American methods of work for women in her own country.

She was traveling from Switzerland to Paris back in the early war days, when an American welfare worker happened to be on the train. In telling her of the work of American women in France, described what the Y. W. C. A. was doing. He described the work so vividly that the countess decided to visit the Paris headquarters, and the welfare worker gave her a letter to the director of the French work, Miss Henriette Reolofs, whom he knew.

The countess took her place at once in the ranks of the untitled American workers. It is said of her that she knows every woman of the German army and the welfare worker gave her a letter to the director of the French work, Miss Henriette Reolofs, whom he knew.

Her father is one of the advisors to King Albert of Belgium, so close to the throne that he left with the court when it fled from the Germans. The countess' familiarity with the whole European situation makes her an invaluable adjunct to the Y. W. C. A. forces and her work includes every sort of service.

MILTON BOY AROUSES IRE OF MAXFIELD

"You know very well that you didn't lick Robert Stockman because he put whiskey in the cider over nine months ago and there is no use of you standing there and telling me such trash," Judge H. L. Maxfield said to him this morning to answer a charge of assaulting Davis.

Both of the young men, residents of Milton, were fast friends a short time ago, according to Davis, but something happened to Davis and he lashed Stockman because some elder which was brought to the Milton Junction high school had been doctored with liquor.

The minute I took a drink of the cider I realized that it was the best I ever had and I knew that there must be something else in it," Davis said.

Davis was the target for a severe rebuke from Judge Maxfield and he was given a sound warning that if he ever came back on a similar charge he would be charged with assault and placed against him.

Judge Maxfield convicted the young man on the testimony offered and fined him $15 and costs or 30 days.

SEASIDE PROFITEERS REPLACED BY "Y"

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, July 26.—Americans who find the cost of vacations so high that they cannot afford to visit the seashore are being replaced by the Young Men's Christian association in attempting to solve the problem in England.

Seaside profiteers have made the vacations so expensive for the average English family that thousands who before the war sought recreation on the east coast of England were unable to do so this year. The hotels have jumped their prices to unheard of figures.

The Y. M. C. A. is offering these families a bed and breakfast in the seashore resorts at $4.20 a week for each person and it proposes to furnish nurses and accommodations for children so that mothers can have a real holiday.

To accomplish this the association rented a hotel at Folkestone and another at Southend and established a tent camp at Herne Bay, equipped them with such furniture as it was able to quickly obtain. All valuables must be left at home and only old clothes can be worn.

No charge is being made for children less than one year old and reduced prices are quoted for those of less than eight years. This permits a family in ordinary circumstances to enjoy the holiday season at much the same price as prevailed before the war.

Y. M. C. A. leaders are planning to extend their vacation accommodations to other shore resorts and to use for this purpose two military camps.

COMPANY G LEAVES FOR WEEK'S DRILL AT CAMP DOUGLAS

Twenty-seven members of Company G, W. S. G., left for Camp Douglas on a special troop train in company with the 6th Infantry organization at 8:30 this morning under command of Capt. E. C. Auman and Lieut. E. J. Haumerson. Together with other units of the 8th regiment including companies from Monroe, Plattville and Madison, they will remain in camp for one week, returning home Friday afternoon.

Those who left Janesville this morning were: Capt. Baumann, Lieut. Haumerson, Quartermaster Sergeant D. Goodsell; Sergeants W. Hill, Jesse Dixon, Albert Nott, Herman Helse, and Stanley Woodruff; Corporals Frank Ryder, Gerald McDermott, Charles Eckert, Cook W. Conroy, and Privates Lyle Boyes, Arnold Downs, R. J. Hart, David Egan, Elmer Hathorn, Donald Ives, Ernest Lund, Oscar Smith, Raymond Quigley, William Seaman, Cleo Stokes, Edward Viner, Lawrence Wright, and J. B. Woodstock.

Privates C. C. Levy and Stanley Lowry, members of the local company, left for camp yesterday morning together with Lieut. Thomas S. Nolan, and Supply Sgt. James Watson. This makes a total of 31 Janesville men who will attend the camp.

BARBERRY FIGHT STILL CONTINUES

Madison, July 26.—The fight upon the barberry, as the cause of black rust in grain, is by no means ended. So many bushes were exterminated when the fight was on a few years ago that the public generally supposed there were none left. Dr. S. B. Fracker, entomologist of the department of agriculture, with T. T. Haack has returned from a conference of cereal pathologists at Ames, Iowa, where it was clearly shown that the present black rust epidemic in South Dakota, Minnesota, and Wisconsin is due directly to barberry still remaining in those states.

It was shown that wherever the barberry has been exterminated the grain situation is much improved. In this state the attractive barberry shrubs have been removed from lawns and other places in the cities, but there are still many in the smaller villages especially in the northwestern part of the state. The work of destroying barberries is to be kept until this fruitful source of grain disease has completely disappeared in this state. One crew has been at work digging up the bushes near Trempealeau where on the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi river, estimated there were 1,500,000 barberry bushes sending out each year the destructive black rust.

BLOODY CONFLICTS REPORTED IN ALSACE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Berlin, July 26.—Disorderly conditions in Strasbourg, the capital of Alsace, are reported in advices received here. Sanguinary conflicts between the French military and civilians are alleged to have occurred.

Promoted to Major.
Manitowoc.—Word has been received here of the promotion of Capt. F. Nelson to the rank of major. Carroll Nelson was the principal of the Lincoln school when the United States entered the war. He crossed overseas with his command in January, 1918, and was twice wounded in action and saw fighting in the biggest fights engaged in by the American troops. He expects to receive orders to return home within a short time.

HERE'S FASCINATING TOGGERY FOR VACATION DAYS

BY ELOISE.

The smart costume, the porch frock and the dance gown, here they all are in dainty and colorful fabrics to tease the most frugal into buying "just one more" for her vacation trunk. At the left is a modish sport skirt of navy blue, which is worn with a blouse of white linen with real clumsy lace for trimming. In the center is a crisp little organdy frock which is pleasant to look at. Panels of fluff ruffles over the hips and fluting at the neck and sleeves with a bit of black velvet for contrast form the trimming. Pale yellow georgette-ruffled and trimmed with bits of silver and with silver potted edges makes the very useful and charming dance frock at the right. A black tulle trimmed with folds of yellow satin ribbon about the crown completes the effect. With these three gowns one is ready for the morning on the links, the afternoon tea on the hotel veranda, and the evening dance at the country club.

Lucia's Legacy

By VERNON LEE

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

When Adam Lysie died he left his real estate to an old bachelor cousin, Wallace Purvin, and his personal property to his orphan niece, Lucia Valle. It was the day after the funeral that these legatees were so advised by his lawyer in the living room of the dilapidated old house.

"All his realty, eh?" sneered Purvin. "There's a lot of it, isn't there?" and he sourly viewed the scrubby lot with broken fence and dilapidated outbuildings. "And what, may I ask, comprises the opulent personal holdings of my illustrious relative?"

Lucia was crying, but she looked up and spoke brokenly: "How can you act so disrespectfully to Uncle Adam! He thought enough of both of us to mention us in his will, and he helped you get into business and he paid for what education I have received."

"I had a right to better expectations. The old spendthrift! There is no doubt that he had quite a fortune five years ago, for he bragged to me about it then. What's become of it—high living?"

"Hardly," half smiled the young lawyer. "I happen to know that Mr. Lysie lost very heavily in a speculation. I also chance to be aware of the fact that he lived on the most meager fare during the past year."

Lucia knew it likewise, only too well! Many a time she had come over to the old home to bring life-sustaining food and nurse the lonely old man when he was ailing and ill. Even now she could recall his words: "You are a good girl, Lucia. You are the only one of all my friends and relatives who cares for or thinks of me."

"Well, you can sell this old rattle trap for what it will bring," said Purvin crossly. "And Lucia gets the personal property? Fortunate legatee! The young heiress! What will you ever do with such rich possessions? Bah!" and the disappointed Purvin swung from room and house with a new snort of irritability. Lucia looked up to read in the face of the young lawyer the profound contempt he felt. "There isn't much to count on, Miss Valle," he said respectfully, "but such as it is becomes subject to your order. The furniture is old, but it will bring something. There is the cow and the horse and wagon and a buggy and the parrot."

"Poor Caesar!" murmured Lucia, going over to the cage of the only house pet Mr. Lysie had ever cherished. "I have tried to feed it but it refuses to eat and sits all day silent and despondent looking. I really believe it misses its master, and is mourning over his death. I will take Caesar home with me. As to the rest of the personal property, if you will kindly take charge of it and sell it for what it will bring, I shall be grateful to you."

It was with emotions of profound esteem for the simple-hearted Lucia that Granville Rowley went his way, and to her his thoughtfulness and consideration were as gleams of sunshine in a dreary routine of labor. Lucia was an orphan and lived with an invalid aunt, acting in the capacity of nurse and housekeeper. For this service she was awarded food and lodging, but had to do some outside sewing to keep up her own modest wardrobe.

Granville called upon her the following week to report as to the disposal of the personal property. The sale had brought two hundred dollars, he told Lucia. She at once handed him half of that sum and asked him to see that an appropriate headstone was placed at the grave of her benefactor. A few days later, Lucia learned that Granville had purchased the house and lot from Purvin for a merely nominal sum.

"Purvin made such a ridiculous sacrifice of the property," Granville explained to her next time they met, "that I was tempted to invest my all. It isn't the worst house in the world. A little repairing would improve it wonderfully, and maybe—maybe, if I could find a wife who would be content to start life in a modest way, why, we would have our first home—stead ready at hand."

Granville laughed as he said this, but regarded Lucia with a half-quizzical, half-earnest glance and she blushed and fluttered. His visits began to become regular and at the end of three months he and Lucia became engaged.

She met him near her home one evening, flustered and excited, and told him that Caesar had escaped from his cage and asked him to help her find him. At the end of an hour they traced the truant to his old home perched on a porch rafter and making up for lost time by shouting out his whole vocabulary. "We'll hide it in the cellar!" Caesar kept repeating over and over again. If some familiar saying of his dead master had vividly returned to him, Granville was attracted by the words. He started an investigation.

"Lucia," he announced the next day, "quite a sum of personal property has turned up in the cellar of the old house—over a thousand dollars—in gold."

As all of it belonged to Lucia, and as Granville owned the house, they mutually decided that they might venture safely upon the sea of matrimony.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

Mrs. R. A. Sprague. It seems strange that it has taken so many years to decide that there are certain jobs in both business and political life which are especially suited to women. But people are now fast waking up to that fact and every day we hear about another young woman who has stepped into a new field which should have been hers years ago. The city council of Grand Forks, N. D., appointed a woman to a political job which is surely a "woman's job" if ever there was one.

The job is that of city food inspector and the woman is Mrs. R. A. Sprague. Mrs. Sprague was appointed after the women of Grand Forks insisted that the police department of the city should have a representative of their sex. Mrs. Sprague, who has been somewhat of a pioneer in food inspection, has been, appropriately called the "municipal housekeeper." Her whole time is taken up with the duty of seeing that the grocers, meat dealers and other handlers of food products do not sell bad food to their customers, and that they keep the foodstuffs in clean places.

Mrs. Sprague's experiences have been many. Recently when the city filtration plant was out of commission, she began advertising "pure spring water." It did not take Mrs. Sprague long to discover that the "pure spring water" was nothing more than the unfiltered river water bottled and selling at a premium, and after she found it out it did not take long to tell the rest of the town and put the "spring water" dealers out of business. It is the women of a community who do the marketing and cook the food, and do the family doctoring, and so what is more fitting than to have a woman at the head of the city department which oversees the marketing, marketing and consumption of the city's food.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is it proper for a young man and a lady to hold hands when walking on the street or in the park? When ascending or descending steps?

Does the time that they have been acquainted have anything to do with it?

When a young man escorts a lady to her home should he go to the door or leave her at the gate if he is not asked to come in?

A SUBSCRIBER.

A young man should take the lady's arm when walking in a crowd, crossing streets and where the walking is difficult. It is all right for the lady to take the man's arm or for him to take her's when promenading in the park.

When ascending or descending steps should take her arm.

The time that they have been acquainted has nothing to do with it. He should take her to the door when he escorts her home.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I was to have had a date with a certain young man. I waited until nine o'clock for him, but when he didn't appear, I went out with another young man.

The former came about fifteen minutes after we had left and since then has been quite angry that I had not waited for him.

(1) Was it too late to keep his date?

(2) Should I have waited for him?

(3) Who should apologize?

L. S. M.

(1) Nine fifteen was too late for him to keep his date. He should have let you know in some way that he was coming late or that he could not come at all.

(2) You should not have gone out with another man. If you had gone to bed that would have been different.

TRUSTING.

Bernie's eyes narrowed. This news surprised him.

"Huh!" he breathed impatiently. "Somebody's blabbed. Well, after a while I'll find out who. Leave this to me. I get off. I'm not going to be bit twice. You trust me, don't you, Annie?"

Annie looked at him, her eyes very sweet in their new maternalness. She loved Bernie and she loved her. It was difficult for Old Age's hard, dry wrinkles (especially over a telephone) to compete with Youth's confident hope. Abstractly Annie knew Simms was right. Concretely there was her young husband, smiling, reaching out to grasp her, reasoning her go plausibly, asking if she "trusted" him.

"Yes, dear, I trust you," she said, "but I just want you to promise me you won't try again—not even to get the money back. Let the money go. We've got enough to do with. I can manage gloriously on your salary, and the other money I'll use for the furniture. Promise, won't you, Bernie—to please me?"

A half-choking little wall sounded from the bedroom. Without pause Annie turned and flew to her son. Bernie went back to his newspaper with an automatic breath of relief. He had not been required to promise. Women were silly, sentimental beings, anyhow, bless them. He turned to the financial news and was soon deep in its columns. Annie, in the other room, was soothing and petting her baby, adjusting his troubles, whatever they were, rearranging the

FOOD AND BLOOD PRESSURE.

Almost daily one or more readers write to ask me to describe the symptoms of high blood pressure.

In the first place, it is against the policy of this department, which is to give the most reliable information. But in this particular instance there are no symptoms, for any increase in the blood pressure above the normal for the individual is itself a symptom, which calls for an examination by the physician.

Several factors control the pressure of the blood in health; the tone or strength of the heart; the tone and development of the muscles of the trunk and limbs; the muscular tone and elasticity of the arteries.

If the blood pressure may be compared with the pressure of water in the municipal water service supply, though the blood pressure is obviously more elastic.

Low or high blood pressure should not be confused with the ancient notion of too little or too much or too rich blood. Nor can the state of the blood pressure be estimated by the complexion or appearance of the individual; a very low pressure may be noted in a "full-blooded" or plethoric or florid-faced "person of the flesh," and in a very high pressure, a pale, anemic, or even a bloodless-looking creature.

When the blood pressure is too high, as measured by the instrument every doctor uses for the purpose, the most important cause, in the majority of cases, is the production of excess of the smaller arteries throughout the body. This narrowing may be mainly due to muscular contraction, contraction of the muscular layer in the wall of the artery; or it may be partly muscular and partly a permanent thickening of the artery wall from a deposit of fibrous or granular tissue in the wall, or it may be wholly from thickening of the artery wall—arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries.

Some of the things known to produce narrowing of the artery walls, either muscular or fibrous, are: (1) the irritation of small amounts of alcohol in beverages; (2) the irritation of the poison in tobacco, whether nicotine or some other germ, produced in the system by various germs, such as that of typhoid fever, or that of pneumonia, or that of influenza, or that of syphilis; (3) the production of excess of the adrenal glands which attend emotional abuses; (4) the irritation of overloads of growth, particularly over-indulgence in meat.

Everybody knows that certain individuals who eat too much, nevertheless are underweight. But many do not yet realize that the cause of this underweight condition is more than is good for his health.

Sometimes the skinny individual who eats too much discovers to his benefit that he can gain weight by eating rather less.

The stout person who has a high blood pressure never fails to benefit from a reduction of the diet or by reasonable fasts or by a little of both as

(3) He does not owe you an apology. Some time if you and he meet and talk, you might say to him, "You are sorry you didn't wait for him."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a young lady twenty years of age and have been keeping company with a young man for some time, and we are not engaged. Is it proper for me to allow him to kiss me?

(2) Do you consider me too young to keep steady company with a young man?

(3) When a young lady is introduced to a gentleman, is it proper for her to shake hands with him?

DOUBTFUL DOROTHY.

(1) It is not proper for a young lady to allow a gentleman to kiss her until you are engaged to him.

(2) You are not too young if you care that much for him.

(3) Yes, it is proper for her to shake hands. Either way is correct.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls of fifteen who do not work, consequently have plenty of time to go out. There are two boys who persist in showering their attentions upon us and get very jealous if we go out with any other boys. What should we do, as they are nice boys, and we want to keep their friendship? We still enjoy ourselves with others? We feel that we are too young to hold any particular friendship, as these boys seem to want us to do. Please advise us.

Let them get over their jealousy, girls, as best they know how. Of course, you don't want to abbreviate your list of boy friends to two and two only.

"Perplexed Bachelor": The address on your envelope was not clear. If you will send it to me again I will answer you at once. Your letter is most interesting and worthy of a reply.

mysterious pins and bands of his subtle, forgetting her financial problems in her one great, beautiful, motherly problem, undoubtedly that the business of the promise had been left unfinished.

Days and weeks of happy housewifery flew by. Now and then she was stabbed by remembrance of the lost savings fund. But what she now had was so much more than she had ever known in her life that the everyday joy of keeping her flat, of loving and tending her baby, of passing a friendly word with the neighbors, going to market, deciding whether the corned beef or the economical steak would be most economical, the luxury of a salad with olive oil to dress it—all this was so captivating, so heart-filling and delightful that the fact of having not having a cent in the savings bank was a remote and patry consideration.

She managed her household with care and good judgment, the old tenement days having served her well as a lesson in domestic economy. Annie often thought of them as she did of Robbie's bonnet, buttoned, tucked, and pinned, and she proudly put it on the folding bed.

Robbie was a sturdy baby, straight and strong. He had never known the dank air of the east-side tenement, nor had he to get his sunbath on the "garbage dock," as Annie had. Ah, how much better off she was now, she thanked God reverently. And Annie, the baby of tenement days, was now a prospering young man of seven, earning his fair wage, enjoying youth's fair share of gayeties. Life was good, thought Annie!

RESTAURANT FROCK OF BROWN CHIFFON

BY ELOISE.

By the looks of advance displays in shop windows we are going to have a brown fall. Brown and tan hats, suits, coats and frocks are already being shown in some of the fashionable shops. The vogue for brown will probably not be a lasting one, but at least late summer and early fall will see much of that color worn.

Brown and tan velour hats look especially smart just now and brown pumps and Oxford shoes are as popular as ever. Brown chiffon and net were never more artistically fashioned than in this charming model from Russek's. A rich shade of brown chiffon is embroidered with heavily embroidered beaded and the sleeves, tunic and skirt are merely trimmed with the brown net. The design is simple, being chemise overdress or a straight tight bodice and sash tying on the side completes the frock. Such a gown purchased now will be found very useful for restaurant or afternoon wear when traveling in the early fall. Here a brown picture hat faced in tan and brown kid pumps with brown lace stockings carry out the one idea color scheme.

Cherry Tarts—One-quarter pound butter crackers, one-half pound marshmallows, one bottle maraschino cherries.

Put a whole marshmallow on each cracker and a maraschino cherry on top of the marshmallow. Place in a shallow baking pan and heat in moderate oven until the marshmallows puff. Lift from pan with a knife and put on paper to cool. This will make about twenty-five tarts. They look dainty and are very nice to serve with ice cream or hot chocolate.

Surprise Gems—Three cups of flour, three level teaspoons baking powder, one and one-half cups milk, one teaspoon lard or butter, one-eighth teaspoon salt.

Stir up well and when ready for gem pans put a portion of batter in bottom of gem pan, making a depression in center of batter. Into this put a teaspoon of jam, jelly or fresh fruit of any kind. Put another spoonful of the batter over the top of this, and when baked it will be a surprise to find the filling. Chopped dates, raisins or figs may also be used. Fine for lunches, as they keep moist.

Frozen Marshmallow Pudding—Place in a saucepan, two and one-half cups of milk, four tablespoons of cornstarch.

Stir until dissolved and then bring to a boil and cook slowly for five minutes. Now add two well-beaten eggs, one cup of sugar, one cup of marshmallow whip.

Stir until well blended and then cool. Freeze, using a mixture of three parts of ice to one part salt. Let stand for one and one-half hours to ripen.

Fruit Salad—Three oranges, three bananas, three apples, one lemon, two eggs, one-half large or one small pineapple, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup walnut meats, one-quarter cup butter, one-half pint cream, pinch of salt, pinch of mustard.

Beat the whites and yolks separately very stiff.

Add the lemon juice to the egg yolks, then the salt, mustard and butter, and lastly the whites of the eggs, put in the double boiler, cook until it thickens. When cool add the cream, which should have been previously whipped. Prepare and dice the fruit, add the chopped nuts and sugar. Then mix the whole with the dressing. Serve in a large salad dish garnished with lettuce. This is simply delicious, and this amount will serve twelve persons.

A SLIGHT OBJECTION

(By author of that thrilling tale: "The Praying Pirates on the Prairie"; and "Twins a Bitter, Bitter Deal"; "He Bit Her on the Dog's Demise"; "Killed by a Biscuit or How?"; "Tom Asunder by the Hand of Hate"; "A Duet in A Flat or Chucked Out"; "The Scripps Scrap over a Scrap of Scrapple"; "Experiences on an Infernal Revenue Ossifer"; "Wait Til He Comes Back, Tilly"; "Roughing It with the Riff-Raff"; "The Hoarse Horse or the Whine of the Equine"; "Slight of Hand, or Rejoiced on His Wedding Morning"; "While Winnie Watered the Flowers, Father Watered the Milk"; "He Tried to Do His Duty but the Duty was Too Much"; and a bunch of others in the rough, so to speak.)

Something unusual was happening in Clam Cove on the shores of Barnacle Bay.

The little parlor of the cottage was all lit up—were the guests. And the little melodeon was wheezing "Where is my Meandering Boy Tonight?"

The bride, daintily dressed in a shimmering veil topped with tomato blossoms and sprays of shamach, carried a bouquet of hops and Billies of the Alley. The men all wore dainty sunflowers in their buttonholes.

The bride was before the preacher, all ready when the groom came in with eyes downcast, twirling his thumbs and flipping the wedding ring which was tied to a button on his coat, in embarrassment.

The pretty little romantic scene was touching enough to bring a flood of tears to a glass eye, and several of the guests sniffled audibly. The bride's mother, not to be outdone, burst right in on hearing sob.

"And who," said the preacher, "has the nerve to object to this union?"

The Evolution of the Pattern

Just as every gorgeous butterfly has its chrysalis so does every beautiful dress have its Pattern.

The charm of color and form emerges from the drab cocoon—and in much the same way, all the grace of dress is developed from McCall Patterns.

Every woman owes it to herself to experience the pleasure and practise the economy of choosing the fabrics that appeal to her taste and satisfy her needs, and then making her own clothes, guided by the simple instructions with each McCall Pattern.

The two beautiful dresses shown above can be easily made by any woman. Ask for Patterns No. 9019 and No. 8964.

Our Dress Goods Department offers many suggestions for just the right material for either of these dresses.

Weekly Market Review.
Chicago, July 25.—Wide spread drought and record breaking high prices of hogs have carried the corn market this week sharply up. Compared with a week ago, corn quotations this morning showed a rise of 6 1/2c advance, oats had gained 1 1/2c to 1 3/4c and provisions were dearer by 3 1/2c to 4 1/2c.

Dry, hot weather day after day and no rain in sight exercised a constant stimulative effect on the bears in corn and so likewise did lessening of hog receipts and successive over-topping of all previous hog values. Only absence of serious damage yet from lack of rain appeared capable of holding the corn market back from further ascent. Especially as there were signs that corn shortage was developing in the middle west and that with the preference the arrivals of corn would be meager for some time.

Forecasters of local thundershowers had only a transient bearish effect. Bulls contended that soaking general rains were needed to avert crop damages. Opening quotations which ranged from 5 1/2c to 6 1/2c advance with September, 195 1/4 to 1 3/4c, and December 1 1/2 to 1 3/4c, were followed by moderate gains. Oats rallied with corn. Offerings were scarce. After opening unchanged to 1 1/2c, the market sagged a little further and then rose to above yesterday's finish.

Provisions were dull but steady.

Chicago Provisions.
Chicago, July 25.—Market: Firm; arrivals 23 cars; new, car lots, Irish cabbages, Virginia and Maryland 7.50@7.60; Kansas 7.50@7.60; Missouri 7.50@7.60; early Ohio sacked 3.30@3.40; California long whites sacked 3.60@3.75 cwt.

Rescuing Boy Drowned.
Milwaukee, July 25.—John Walker, 13, after leaping into the Milwaukee river and saving Jeanette Jahnke, 12, leaped again in an attempt to save her companion Josephine Schill. Both were drowned. The girls had been playing on a raft. The Walker boy was attracted by screams from the river and rushed to the assistance of the two girls, whom he found floundering in the water.

Wall Street Gossip.
New York, July 25.—Bullish mid-summer conditions prevailed in the stock market today, the short season being given over to pools and professional traders. Dealings were moderate, and ran mainly to motors, oil, steel and copper. Shipping, tin, rubber, copper and food shares shared their periods of activity with several of the obscure specialties. In the latter part of the first hour were overcome later, a demand for United States Steel being the sustaining feature. The closing was strong. Sales approximately 600,000 shares.

There was little trace at the opening of the selling pressure which contributed to yesterday's irregular dealing. Steel, oil and shippings led the vigorous advance at gains of 1 to 2 1/2 points. Motors and tin shares also scored. Little progress, aside from further buying of New Haven and several other low priced issues. Announcement of the proposed capital increase of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey caused considerable covering of short contracts.

AIRPLANE TO TAKE UP PASSENGERS

Janesville people will have their first opportunity to view Janesville from an airplane this afternoon and tomorrow when J. R. Overly will take up passengers in his Curtiss plane. Mr. Overly was an instructor in the air service of the army. The airplane was scheduled to leave the First airport, Milwaukee, about one o'clock and will probably arrive here about 2:30 this afternoon.

The plane will land at the fair grounds and besides taking passengers it will give a demonstration of the type of flying taught in the army. The plane is being brought here under the direction of E. A. Kemmerer of the Kemmerer Garage and all those who wish to fly can leave word at the garage.

MEXICO CELEBRATES RETURN OF PEACE

Mexico City, July 25.—Celebrations of the return of peace have been held within the last few days by nationals of the allied countries residing here. On July 3 and 4 festivities were conducted by the Country club or club where and the stores and shops of business men of the allied nations were closed and decorated. The fiestas included informal receptions to returned soldiers of the allied armies. Sunday, July 6, two memorial services were held for allied soldiers who died in the war. One was conducted by the French colony and the other by English speaking people of the capital. The various colonies generally cooperated in the festivities.

Saloon Men in Protest

Manitowoc.—Saloon men have held a big protest meeting because the local brewery is charging them $16 per barrel for near beer. The saloonkeepers say the price makes it impossible to make a profit when the stuff is doled out in glasses, and that nobody would stand for a ten cent charge for a glass of the stuff that is wet but cheers not.

Missionaries to Meet

Sheboygan.—The fourth annual missionary conference will be held at the Franklin Mission house, August 18 to 24. Delegates from all over the United States will be in attendance. They will be lodged and served with meals on the college campus. Missionary discussions will be held and there will be many social features such as fishing trips, tennis tournament, races, baseball games, and picnics.

Keep Your Tractor Young

The best tractor ever made will eventually slow up, get sluggish and lazy if you use inferior lubricating oils. The energy and life of any machine depends upon proper lubrication. Keep your tractor young and perpetuate its efficiency by using our tractor oil.

It is extra heavy, free flowing, high fire test, specifically refined for heavy-slow moving type of engines used in modern tractors—an oil that stands up under the most intensified working temperatures.

This is but one of the many high grade farm machinery oils that constitutes our line of guaranteed lubricants, which we recommend to the most particular trade.

HAWKS AND JANES READY FOR BIG FRAY

Playing for the exclusive use of the fair grounds the balance of the season and a side-bet of 200 plunks, the Lawrence Janes and Blackhawks will stack up against each other at the fair grounds tomorrow afternoon before what is predicted to be another immense crowd of spectators. Rivalry between the two local teams and their rooters has become so keen that the last days that betting is running nearly as high as on the Footville game last Sunday.

It promises to be one of the hottest frays ever staged by two home teams and as for developing excitement, it ought to have the Footville games beaten to death. The thing that is going to make these boys fight is the fact that the winning side will have to use the grounds every Sunday in the future, the losing team to drop into a hole in the ground as 'twere.

The Hawks will have Clatworthy, Jackson, Britt, and Smith in reserve. The Janes will have Dupp on the bench. The Hawks have asked permission to substitute Lamphere of Footville for Riley at short if the latter fails to appear.

Both teams expressed confidence of victory today and there remained little to do but try to dope out the result from past performances. The Janes are easily the favorites, but the manager, George Murphy, from Boswell has any storm, he may baffle the Janes to such an extent that the Hawks may be able to sneak home with a victory.

The diamond is in perfect shape for the contest and if playing for money over develops speed this affair tomorrow should certainly be a corker for this. The grand stand has been cleaned in a fact everything is "stilla pretty" for a big-time battle.

Manager Murphy requests that all Janes appear at a meeting at the London hotel at 7:30 tonight.

GAME TODAY DECIDES LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

The leader and probable final winner of the Industrial league championship will be determined at the Samson park this afternoon when the Janesville Machine Co. and Parker Pen lines mix in a nine-inning game before a crowd of spectators predicted to be the largest that has seen a league game this season. The two teams are tied at the top of the league with two victories apiece.

It opened this morning as pitchers were announced that it would develop into a heaviest duel, as Viney was slated to hurl for the pennant with Bill Lathrop on the mound for the machinists. This game is scheduled to start at 2 p. m.

The other league game today—Barb Wire vs. Y. M. C. A.—will begin at the fair grounds at 2:30 p. m., with the wiremakers favorites.

ALL-STARS TAKE ON JUNCTION CRESCENTS

Charley Bluff, Lake Koshkonong, will be the scene tomorrow afternoon of one of those Janesville All-Stars-Milton Junction Crescents games which have proved such big attractions in the past. The affair will be the hottest of the three-game series as each team has a victory apiece.

The Stars will leave Pitch's store between 10:30 and 11:30 tomorrow morning ready to face either Monogue as Astin, whichever one is placed in the Crescents' box.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE.

While the National and American league teams clattered along on their respective pennant chases last summer sundry ball tossers from both leagues were engaged in another line of endeavor—that of whipping the startled Hun or preparing in this country for the grim business overseas. Their absence from the field, the play had perceptible effect on the morale of their mates who were left behind. Some clubs were hit harder than others, but every manager looked forward to the day when the boys in France were back in the old game might go on again at its accustomed pace, with the gaps in the ranks of the regular players filled by the returned doughboys and jacks.

The Giants have been exceptionally fortunate in that the four men who entered the service of the country last year and whose loss caused the club to drop from the lead in the scramble have come back to them to impart the vigor necessary to carry them into the van and keep them there most of the time. The effort of the present efforts of the rampant Reds. These players are Jess Barnes, Benny Kauff, Ruben Benton and Al Baird.

First of the four to go was Al Baird, who enlisted during the winter of 1917-18. He joined the naval reserve force, but did not draw an assignment to a ship patrolling foreign waters. With the former Louisiana conscription in France being shy of second string material for the infield, and the lack of this reserve strength was many times very apparent. This year, filled in at second base, the occasion demanded, Baird has made himself extremely useful. Also, he has been labeled by John McGraw as one member of the team that one day will replace the present veteran array. Benton, called to the colors when

Jimmy Hill Found To Be a Gentleman

Some unusual boxers have broken into the limelight during the past few years, but Jimmy Hill, the Australian featherweight, who came to this country recently for the purpose of clashing with Champion Johnny Kilbane, seems to be the most considerate of all ringmen who have enjoyed the limelight in America for many years.

Hill whipped everything in the Antipodes in the featherweight class, so he packed his divide and shipped to this country. When he landed in California, Hill was flushed with the prospect of battling for the crown, but his aspirations were punctured when he learned that Champion Kilbane had lost one of his little daughters through illness.

Hill hooked up with Tim Sullivan, the man who brought Les Dwyer here. He took Sullivan to go out and get him some matches. Then Hill cautioned Sullivan to keep all challenges away from Kilbane because the champion was feeling "I want to fight for the featherweight title," said Hill, "but I am not going to be the first one to draw the champion into a ring after he has suffered such a loss as the death of a daughter."

"The Australian does not need to be designated or characterized as a gentleman after a display of such grand sentiment. Very few indeed are the fighters who would side-track their own pursuits simply because a bereavement existed in the home of the man they hoped to triumph over. Hill said Kilbane will surely return to the ring when he rallies from his great sorrow, and when he does Hill will try to engage him in a battle. In the meantime, Hill is anxious to work out against some of the other lads who think they should have precedence over the Australian for the fling at Kilbane.

Kilbane was greatly impressed when he was informed of Hill's attitude. "He must be a gentleman of the first type," said the champion. It is true that boxing needs more men like Hill for they are refreshing different from the old type that insisted upon battle regardless of the champion's frame of mind.

Timberworkers to Meet.
Rhinelander—A meeting is to be held in this city in the near future by the International Union of Timberworkers of upper Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, for the purpose of formulating demands for an eight-hour day. This is the only branch of labor in the city that is working the 10-hour day.

Rhinelander—This city is facing one of the biggest labor shortages in its history, and according to the local employment office about 200 men are needed at once by the many mills and factories. The scarcity of men here is largely due to the departure of many local men for the western harvest fields, where it is reported there is an over abundance of labor already.

Every Dollar Put to Work Now

Is a Foundation Stone in Building Our Local Prosperity

THERE'S a tremendous lot of building that must be done in this city and we've got to get at it. We need homes, and apartment buildings, and schools, to say nothing of business buildings, and unless we get them soon our city is going to suffer.

For two years all building has been stopped. Population has increased, rents have jumped. People are paying premium prices to find any kind of a place to live in.

We Need To Get Business Going

IT'S perfectly obvious that such conditions can't be permitted to last very long if this city is to be a desirable place to live and transact business. If we don't remedy it, we'll lose a lot of prosperity that should come to us—and that reacts on every man and woman that lives here.

At the same time, we need to keep business going. The end of the war has brought us an industrial situation that we must face in common. Building is the quickest possible way to stimulate business and tide over this crucial period. And we can build as cheaply now as we will be able to for years to come.

We'll All Profit If We Work Together

WHAT we need is to get our bankers and property owners and contractors together—at once! We must all talk building and plan building. Materials are available, railroads can make deliveries, there is sufficient labor and there's a demand for buildings that is unprecedented. Surely it's a favorable market.

Prices aren't going down soon—there's nothing to gain by delay and much we can lose. Let's get together—and do it AT ONCE.

The Magnificent Ambersons

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright by Doubleday, Page, & Co.

He descended to dinner upon the third urgent summons of the colored butler, having spent two hours dressing—and rehearsing.

The Hon. George Amberson was a congressman who led cotillions—the sort of congressman an Amberson would be. He did it negligently tonight, yet with infallible dexterity, now and then glancing humorously at the spectators, people of his own age.

George had carried out his rehearsed projects with precision. He had given Miss Morgan a nod studied into perfection during his lengthy toilet before dinner. "Oh, yes, I do seem to remember that curious little outsider!" this nod seemed to say. Thereafter all cognizance of her evaporated: the curious little outsider was permitted no further existence worth the struggle. Nevertheless she flashed in the corner of his eyes too often. She seemed to be having a "wonderful time!"

An unbearable soreness accumulated in his chest: his dislike of the girl and her conduct increased until he thought of leaving this sickening Assembly and going home to bed. That would show her! But just then he heard her laughing and decided that it wouldn't show her. So he remained.

When the young couples seated themselves in chairs against the walls round three sides of the room for the cotillon, George joined a brazen-faced group clustering about the doorway: youths with no partners, yet eligible to be "called out" and favored. He marked that his uncle placed the infernal Kinney and Miss Morgan, as the leading couple, in the first chairs at the head of the line upon the leader's right; and this disloyalty on the part of Uncle George was inexcusable, for in the family circle the nephew had often expressed his opinion of Fred Kinney. In his bitterness George uttered a significant monosyllable.

The music flourished, whereupon Mr. Kinney, Miss Morgan and six of their neighbors rose and waltzed knowingly. Mr. Amberson's whistle blew; then the eight young people went to the favor table and were given toys and trinkets wherewith to delight the new partners. It was now their privilege to select.

George strolled with a bored air to the tropical grove, where sat his elders, and seated himself beside his Uncle Sydney. His mother leaned across Miss Fanny, raising her voice over the music to speak to him.

"George, nobody will be able to see you here. You'll not be favored. You ought to be where you can dance."

"Don't care to," he returned.

"Bore!"

"But you ought—" She stopped and laughed, waving her fan to direct his attention behind him. "Look—Over your shoulder!"

He turned and discovered Miss Lucy Morgan in the act of offering him a purple toy balloon.

"I found you!" she laughed.

George was startled. "Well—" he said.

"Would you rather sit it out?" Lucy asked quickly as he did not move. "I don't care to dance if you—"

"No," he said, rising. "It would be better to dance." His tone was solemn, and solemnly he departed with her from the grove. Solemnly he danced with her.

Four times, with not the slightest encouragement, she brought him a favor; four times in succession. When the fourth came, "Look here!" said George huskily. "You going to keep this up all night? What do you mean by it?"

For an instant she seemed confused. "That's what cotillions are for, aren't they?" she murmured.

"What do you mean: what they're for?"

"So that a girl can dance with a person she wants to?"

George's huskiness increased. "Well, do you mean you want to dance with me all the time—all evening?"

"Well, this much of it—evidently!" she laughed.

"Is it because you want to even things up for making me angry—I mean for hurting my feelings on the way home?"

With her eyes averted—for girls of nineteen can be as shy as boys, sometimes—she said, "Well—you only got angry because I couldn't dance the cotillon with you. I didn't feel terribly hurt with you for getting angry about that!"

"Was there any other reason? Did my telling you I liked you have anything to do with it?"

She looked up gently and as George met her eyes something exquisitely touching yet queerly delightful gave him a catch in the throat. She looked instantly away, and, turning, ran out from the palm grove, where they stood, to the dancing floor.

"Come on!" she cried. "Let's dance!"

He followed her.

"See here—I—I—" he stammered.

"You mean—Do you—"

"No, no," she laughed. "Let's dance!"

He put his arm about her almost tremulously and they began to waltz. It was a happy dance, for both of them.

Christmas day is the children's, but the holidays are youth's dancing time. The holidays belong to the early twenties and the teens, home from school and college. It is the liveliest time in life; the happiest of the irresponsible times in life. Mothers echo its happiness—nothing is like a mother who has a son home from college, except another mother with a son home from college. Yet they give up their sons to the daughters of other mothers, and find it proud rapture enough to be allowed to sit and watch.

Thus Isabel watched George and Lucy dancing as together they danced away the holidays of that year into

THAT'S DIFFERENT

By Probasco

one past.

"They seem to get along better than they did at first, those two children," Fanny Minner said, sitting beside her at the Sharons' dance a week after the Assembly. "They seemed to be always having little quarrels of some sort at first. At least George did; he seemed to be continually pecking at that lovely, dainty little Lucy, and being cross with her over nothing."

"Pecking?" Isabel laughed. "What a word to use about George! I think I never knew a more ungenuinely amiable disposition in my life!"

Miss Fanny echoed her sister-in-law's laugh, but it was a rueful echo, and not sweet. "He's amiable to you!" she said. "That's all the side of him you ever happen to see. And why wouldn't he be amiable to anybody that simply fell down and worshiped him every minute of her life? Most of us would!"

"Isn't he worth worshipping? Just look at him!"

"Oh, I'm not going to argue with you about George!" said Miss Fanny. "I'm fond enough of him, for that matter. He can be charming, and he's certainly stunning looking, if only—"

"Let the 'if' only go, dear," Isabel suggested good-naturedly. "Let's talk about that dinner you thought I should—"

"I?" Miss Fanny interrupted quickly. "Didn't you want to give it yourself?"

"Indeed I did, my dear!" said Isabel heartily. "I only meant that unless you had proposed it perhaps I wouldn't."

But here Eugene came for her to dance, and she left the sentence uncompleted. Holiday dances can be happy for youth reprieved as well as for youth in bud—and yet it was not with the air of a rival that Miss Fanny watched her brother's wife dancing with the widower. Miss Fanny's eyes narrowed a little, but only as if her mind engaged in a hopeful calculation. She looked pleased.

DR. GODDARD will be at the Grand Hotel, Janesville, Tuesday, July 29th. Hours: 9 to 6. Consultation Free.

DR. GODDARD

I Want the Chronic Cases

Says: Dr. Goddard

Other Doctors Do Not

Nine out of ten practicing physicians hate to see a person suffering from a CHRONIC ailment come into their office.

Such cases as a rule are not only hard to treat but take careful, patient service on the part of the doctor and are a class of people who having become despondent and discouraged with the chronicity of their troubles are irritable, cross and hard to handle.

A physician in order to successfully treat this class of patients must be peculiarly adapted by temperament and training to handle these cases in such a way as not only to offend them but to secure their co-operation and confidence.

It is just such qualifications as these, added to his expert knowledge in the treating of chronic diseases, that has made DR. GODDARD, the MILWAUKEE SPECIALIST, so successful in treating CHRONIC CASES and he is justified in wanting this class of people for his patients.

If you or any of your family, or friends are in this class—CHRONIC SUFFERERS—and you have been treated unsuccessfully by your local or other physicians and yet have a longing hope to be cured, come and see DR. GODDARD on his next visit to JANESVILLE on TUESDAY, JULY 29th, at the GRAND HOTEL, and without one cent of cost to you, consult this man who makes a specialty of treating CHRONIC APPENDICITIS, RUPTURE, GALL STONE, COLIC, GOITRE, VARICOSE VEINS, and ULCERS, diseases of the STOMACH and BOWELS and all CHRONIC DISEASES, and let him examine you and give you a TRUTHFUL and HONEST opinion as to what can be done for you.

DR. GODDARD comes to us, highly recommended and counts among his patients many of the best known people in this city.

Under no circumstances will he accept any incurable case for treatment but will frankly and honestly tell you what is best to do.

CONSULTATION is FREE and ABSOLUTELY CONFIDENTIAL. If you cannot call personally write to him at his address below for his little book which is FREE, entitled "MODERN METHODS OF TREATING CHRONIC DISEASES without OPERATIONS." It is intensely interesting. A postal card will bring it to you in a plain envelope.

DR. GODDARD will again be at the GRAND HOTEL, JANESVILLE, TUESDAY, JULY 29th, from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. and every four weeks thereafter.

Dinner Stories

Two sailors, an Irishman and a Scotchman, could never agree and the rest of the crew had become adepts in starting them on an argument. One day "patron saints" was the subject, of which the Scotchman knew nothing and the Irishman just a little.

"Who was the patron saint of Ireland?" said Jack.

"Do you mean to say you don't know?" said Pat. "Why the holy St. Patrick."

"Well," said Jack in deliberate tones, "hang your St. Patrick."

In a towering rage the Irishman hesitated a second while he thought of something equally offensive and burst out with, "And hang your Harry Lauder!"

An officer on board a warship was drilling his men.

"I want every man to lie on his back, put his legs in the air, and move them as if he were riding a bicycle," he exclaimed. "Now commence."

After a short effort, one of the men stopped.

"Why have you stopped, Murphy?" asked the officer.

"If ye please, sir," was the answer, "O'm coasting."

"We feel crowded in this flat," said the tenant diffidently.

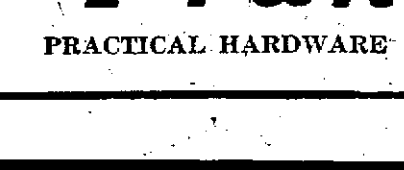

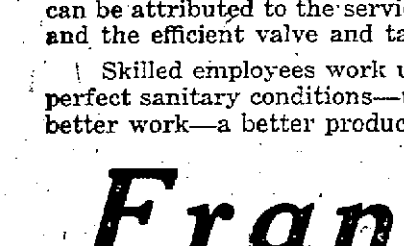

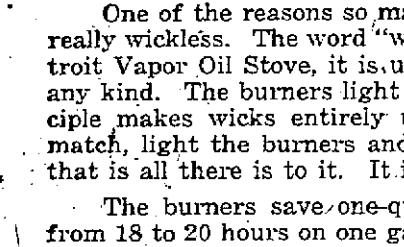

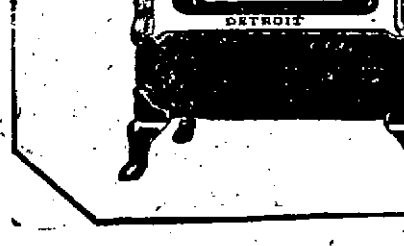

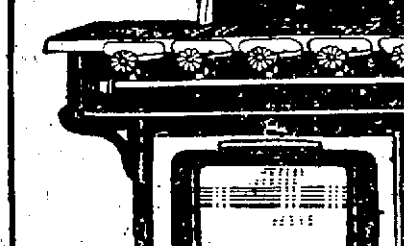

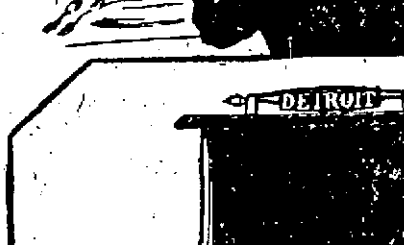

"No wonder," exclaimed the janitor. "This flat was never intended for a family of six."

"But there are only myself and wife."

"I know better. Besides you two there are a canary bird and three goldfish."

"When a man courts a girl, it is deeds, not words, that count."

"Yes, especially if they are real estate deeds."

Comes Home Decorated. Manitowish, Adolph C. Stangel has returned to his home at Manitowish with the Croix de Guerre and with a special citation. He saw his most active fighting at Chateau-Thierry, St. Mihiel and the Meuse Argonne. The Croix de Guerre came as a reward when word reached the French high command that Lieutenant Stangel had kept his platoon in action after being gassed and wounded. At Zivray Lieut. Stangel's command was attacked by 800 Germans.

Make Your Start Toward Home-Ownership

This is the Time! Nothing to be Gained by Delay!

Every normal human being has a lurking ambition to one day be master of his own premises—to be able to sprawl his length on a lawn of his own--and look out upon the passing world, kindly as the summer sky above him.

But the man who realizes the home of his dreams is the man who MAKES A BEGINNING.

What Owning a Home Will Do!

It's great to be YOUNG, INDUSTRIOUS, and steady on the JOB! It's the fellows who stick, who strike in their roots and give themselves time to GROW, that get up in the world.

Have you ever pictured yourself and your little WIFE proprietors and occupants of a trim little DWELLING on a well kept STREET—flowers under the WINDOWS, decent, kindly NEIGHBORS, SHRUBS, an' everything?

Here are two or three things which OWNING a HOME will do:

It will give you STANDING in the community!

It will convert you from spendthrift ways to habits of SAVING!

It will STIFFEN your CHARACTER, build up CONFIDENCE in yourself, add to your SELF-RESPECT—and make you FEEL like a MAN! The land surface of the earth is LIMITED! Don't allow 'em to CROWD you OFF in old age—OWN A PIECE OF IT WITH A HOME ON IT.

Come Out and Take Your Pick of Sixteen Houses and Bungalows

Modern in every respect. Built to last and give the utmost satisfaction. Built at prices which enable us to sell them at less than they could be built for now—all material and labor costs have risen since we started construction on this first unit.

It's going to be very hard to secure places to rent this fall. Why not anticipate the situation and get one of these Matteson-Lindstrom homes, which can be secured on the easy payment plan?

Call at our office—downtown or on the grounds—and get complete information regarding our easy payment plan.

Make that decision now. Decide to own your own home.

What You Get When You Buy A Matteson-Lindstrom Home:

Location—Ideally located on Sherman avenue, just off Milton avenue. South fronts; close to car line, not far from town, in easy walking distance. Just a few blocks to school. Complete with city water, gas and electricity.

Construction—By the best carpenters, laborers and finishers, under our own supervision. Bungalows are complete with rug texture, brick fireplaces and built-in bookcases and mantels. Basement floors are 2 coat 4½-inch concrete, the standard specification for city sidewalks. Roofed with clear red cedar 5 to 2 shingles. Clear California Redwood used for siding. Oak trimmed. Paneled dining rooms. Breakfast nooks. Rudy furnace. Famous "Standard" plumbing fixtures. Kitchens finished complete in white enamel.
